Keuka Lake is called the “Lady of the Lakes” because of its natural beauty. The Indian name Keuka means “canoe landing” but the lake was called Crooked Lake by the settlers. The shoreline of Keuka is just under 60 miles long.

Keuka Lake Facts

Elevation: 715 ft.

Area: 11,584 acres

Length: 19.6 miles

Maximum width: 1.9 miles

Maximum depth: 183 ft.

Volume: 390 billion gallons

The western branch of Keuka Lake flows north to south. At the point where it meets the east branch, at the end of the bluff, it joins the northerly flow of the rest of the lake, making it the only lake in the country, and one of the few lakes in the world, to flow both north and south. Out of the eastern branch, Keuka drains into Seneca Lake, making it the only Finger Lake to drain into another.

At the end of the last ice age, glaciers carved deep trenches in the earth that, when the earth warmed and the glaciers receded, filled with water forming what we now know as the Finger Lakes. The deep water of the largest lakes, combined with the high hills alongside, create a micro-climate ideal for growing grapes.

The Finger Lakes is the largest and most celebrated wine producing regions in the Eastern United States. At its heart lies Keuka Lake, whose spectacular beauty and glacially-deposited soils inspired early grape cultivation and the birth of America’s wine industry in 1860. Today, Keuka Lake’s wineries craft some of the world’s most beautifully balanced and vibrant wines.
